COAL STRIKE SITUATION UNCHANGED

(Special from United Press.)
New York, March 18.—Extension of the Erdman act, to apply on railroads and interstate commerce and the coal industry, does not appear to the miners and is not likely to save the trouble in the Pennsylvania hard coal fields. The fact that the miners' arbitrators, under this act, are not mandatory, is expected to be a grave obstacle to its benefiting the industry at this time. Both sides, however, there will be a general stoppage of work on March 31. But it is believed negotiations will have been resumed by then and the strike will not be lengthy. It was admitted, today, that if the bituminous operators and miners can reach an amicable solution of the matters in dispute in the soft coal district at their conference in Cleveland, Wednesday, the anthracite operators will be more anxious to settle as they do not care to have the soft coal men cut into their field.

BARRE MILL HANDS MAY BE EVICTED

(Special from United Press.)
Barre, Mass., March 18.—Seven hundred and fifty mill operatives who were on strike at the Barre Wool Combing Mills will be evicted from the mill-owned tenements immediately unless they return to work. The operatives struck, Friday, for a living wage. Several conferences with Superintendent T. G. Thompson, of the mill failed to adjust the difficulties and when a score of non-strikers attempted to do some work in the yard of the mills, Saturday, a clash between special police and operatives resulted in many injuries among police and operatives and the arrest of five. Today, Superintendent Thompson was quoted as saying: "The strikers won't work. It is necessary to have men who will. I don't propose to have my mills shut down. We will bring men here who will, and will place them and their families in the tenements as we have a right to do." The mill-owned tenements are occupied by the poorest paid operatives, most of whom are foreigners. Every spare house in Barre is occupied and even if they had the money for rentals elsewhere the strikers would be forced out onto the streets. The situation is tense, and trouble more serious than that which occurred at Lawrence, Mass., is expected if the mills make good their threat to import strikebreakers and evict the strikers from the tenements.

FAMOUS ORATOR TO ADDRESS CONTEMPORARY CLUB THIS EVENING

The members of the Contemporary club are looking forward to a delightful evening at the residence of Judge and Mrs. George W. Wheeler, tonight, when Dr. Charles R. Brown, dean of the Divinity School of Yale University, will speak upon "The Greatest Men of the Nineteenth Century." Dr. Brown is a very remarkable man. He was for sometime pastor of the largest Congregational church in the West, that of Oakland, which has a membership of 2,000. He was afterward with Dr. Gordon's church in Boston. The demands upon him are large. Upon one occasion when it was desired that he should deliver a sermon at Battell Chapel, the engagement had to be made a year ahead, because his time on Sunday was so fully occupied. In 1905 he delivered the Lyman Beecher lectures at Yale Divinity school, to which only the best men in the world are invited, the faculty sometimes procuring men from Europe or the continent. Dr. Brown's subject opens a wide field. The lecture is said to be entirely unique and of absorbing interest.

30,000 TEXTILE STRIKERS RETURN TO WORK TODAY

Men and Women Win Notable Industrial Victory After 10 Weeks Battle

(Special from United Press.)
Lawrence, March 18.—Victorious in their 10 weeks strike for a living wage 30,000 textile operatives streamed back to the mills, today. There was no disorder and except for a misunderstanding between some skilled operatives and the agents at the Washington mill, the day passed off as uneventful as if there never had been a big industrial war carried to a successful termination here. At the Washington mill, one of the American Woolen Company's, between 405 and 450 porters, speckled operatives employed in the burling department, walked out in a body about an hour after the opening. They immediately met in Franco-Belgian Hall and drew up resolutions protesting against what they claim is discrimination favoring those who didn't strike. They declared that only a few were set to work, that these few were all non-strikers and that those who were not put to work today, all of whom were former strikers, were told that they would be taken back as occasion demanded. Although the three classes of skilled help mentioned declare they must be shown proof that they will not be discriminated against before they will go back, it is not feared that the differences will last long. Leaders of other crafts pointed out that several of the mills have advertised for help and that, because the mills are beginning in its output, they will soon be working with larger forces than for several years.

U. S. MARINES SEIZE CUSTOMS HOUSE IN CHINA

(Special from United Press.)
Swatow, China, March 18.—American marines took possession of the customs house here today, following a battle between the native bandits and loyal troops brought here from Canton. The United States Monitor Terry and the Japanese cruiser in the local harbor have both been swept by rifle bullets several times. No one was injured on the American war craft but a Japanese sailor was so badly wounded he died soon afterward. The casualties in today's fighting are believed to have been very heavy.

FIGHTING IN PEKIN.
Pekin, March 18.—Fighting broke out again today in the native quarter of the city between the loyalists and the rebels. The fighting was especially hard in the legation section. An augmented legation guard is ready to meet any situation that may arise. The guards at the entrances to the compounds have been trebled and the crews of the machine guns that have been mounted are constantly at their posts.

JACK THE HUGGER ADJUDGED INSANE.

(Special from United Press.)
Norwich, March 18.—A confessed "Jack the hugger" and thief, Patrick McAttavey, 24, was adjudged insane in police court today, and ordered removed to the State asylum. Several women identified him after his arrest, yesterday, as the "hugger" who has terrorized the Greenville section lately.

Pure English.

"My dear, I wish you would speak more carefully," said a stickler for pure English to his wife. "You say that 'Henry Jones came to this town from Sunderland.' Don't you see that it would be better to say that he 'came from Sunderland to this town'?" "I don't see any difference in the two expressions," rejoined the lady. "But there is a difference in the two expressions—a rhetorical difference. You don't hear me make use of such awkward expressions. By the way, I have a letter from your father in my pocket."

"Oh, dear! Is my father in your pocket?" inquired the wife. "You mean that you have in your pocket a letter from my father?" "There you go with your little quibbles! You take a delight in harassing me. You are always taking up a thread and representing it as rope." "Representing it to be a rope, you mean, dear."

And then he grinned a sickly grin and wished he had never started the discussion.—London Answers.

Advice to the Trustees.
In handling other people's money the principal must be kept intact. If, as a trustee, those to whom you are responsible insist upon an income which you in your heart know cannot be obtained without taking some slight chance, give up the trust without hesitation, says World's Work. There is no more bitter experience through which an honest trustee or executor can pass than the rendering of an accounting for a lost or depleted trust. No reason or excuse can weigh for an instant against the actual result which he faces. A single slip in the handling of funds like this may doom all future generations of that family to lives of poverty. This is the greatest responsibility ever laid upon a trustee, an executor, a banker or an adviser, and no honest man should assume it unless he is prepared to endure for the sake of the future all the criticism that may center upon him on account of extreme conservatism in the present.

Reminders of Napoleon.
"I never knew Missouri was filled with reminders of the Napoleonic wars until I took a trip over the Missouri Pacific's river branch to Boonville," a traveling man remarked. "Thoughts of the great struggle in France commenced to dawn upon me when the brakeman went through the train calling 'Napoleon.' I recalled the career of ambition of the great Corsican general and was allowing my thoughts to wander in that vein when the next station was announced—Waterloo. I began to recall further incidents and thoughts of the victorious general who blasted Napoleon's hopes of a great empire. Imagine my surprise when I found the next station was Wellington. The next stop had nothing to do with the French wars, so I thought the coincidences were over. But I wanted to learn the why of it all, so I asked the conductor. He didn't answer. He was Grouchy."—Kansas City Journal.

A Chinese Printing Office.
The difficulties of making up a font of Chinese types are very great. Kang Hsi's dictionary, the standard and most comprehensive work of its kind, contains 40,800 characters, but it has been found that for all practical purposes a font need contain only about 7,000. With a font of this size the Chinese printer, in the course of setting up a book, will frequently find that he lacks a dozen or so unusual characters, a difficulty which he meets by having these missing symbols hand cut on blank type by skilled engravers. Although practically all Chinese newspapers and books on modern topics are now printed from movable metal type, books pertaining to old China, such as the Confucian classics and the commentaries on them, are still produced by the time honored method of printing from wooden blocks.
